JOHN S. CALKINS

Price List of Olive Trees,

POMONA, LOS ANGELES CO., CAL.

December 14th, 1893.

Trees carefully packed in moss and delivered at railroad stations here without charge.

Intending purchasers are invited to visit the nurseries and inspect the stock. All orders intrusted to me will receive faithful attention.

The trees here offered have not been forced by fertilizers nor over-irrigation but they are very thrifty, well rooted and free of scale.

My leading variety is the Nevadillo which is more easy of propagation and the trees more vigorous than any other in my collection, which enables me to supply this valued sort at a less price than any other.

I first propagated above stock from trees in bearing. The varieties are so distinct in appearance in nursery that they are known from each other by sight, and great care is used that varieties do not become mixed, therefore I have no hesitation in saying that my trees will prove true to label,
